Rowan Ramsey MP

First elected to the Parliament in 2007 Rowan represents the electorate of Grey which covers 92% of South Australia and is the fourth largest in the country.

Rowan came to political life after living and farming on the Eyre Peninsula and seeing firsthand what can be achieved when people work together for the good of the community.

He has had a long association with agriculture, Apex, the Country Fire Services and sporting clubs. This grass roots involvement gave him a good grounding to gauge community needs and take on leadership roles.

In the current Parliament Rowan is Chair of the Parliamentary Friends of Diabetes, Convenor of Rural and Regional Liberals and sits on a number of Standing and backbench committees.

Fraser Ellis MP

Fraser Ellis Member for Narungga was elected in the March 2018 State Election.

Born and raised in Kadina on Yorke Peninsula, where his family (for four generations) own and operate the region's newspaper, the Yorke Peninsula Country Times. Fraser is both a Law degree graduate and has worked in the area of media/journalism. He comes with an energised approach to politics and being a local himself (even still playing a game of footy on Saturdays for his beloved Bloodhounds when his diary allows) his natural priorities are regional development, businesses and services, all to ensure rural communities remain sustainable and vibrant.
